FOREST

WELCOME to the 2024 National Forest Walking Festival!

With huge thanks to our wonderful volunteers, who each year give up their time to lead and guide walks for our Festival, we are delighted to be able to put on our annual programme of walks for a 15th year.

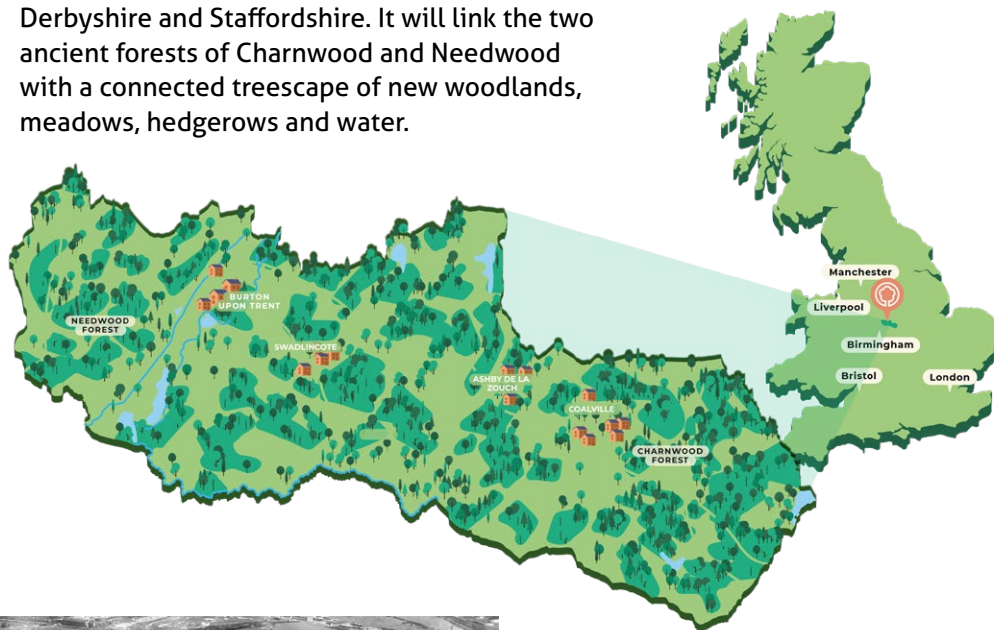

This year there are a record 94 walks to choose from, and we are celebrating the rich and varied heritage of the National Forest. You can take a walk back through time and learn about the rocks beneath our feet, hear stories of stately homes and the families who lived there, and find out how our industrial past shaped the Forest.

We hope you enjoy this year's festival, and it inspires you to go and explore the Forest in your own time. If you want a challenge, then why not join our virtual National Forest Trek? Set up to mark ten years since the creation of our 75-mile long distance trail, you can walk it in your own time, at your own pace and support the National Forest in doing so. For details visit www.nationalforesttrek.co.uk.

Where is the National Forest?

Rooted in the heart of the country, the National Forest spans 200 square miles of Leicestershire, Derbyshire and Staffordshire. It will link the two ancient forests of Charnwood and Needwood with a connected treescape of new woodlands, meadows, hedgerows and water.

At the heart of the Forest the story is one of huge landscape-scale transformation; from black coalfields and grey clay pits to green canopies and wildlife-rich habitats.

What is the National Forest?

Beginning in 1991, the idea behind the Forest was radical: to create and manage the first forest at scale in England for 1,000 years. It is a 'forest' in the old sense of the word: not wall to wall trees but a distinctly wooded landscape that provides a setting within which people live, work and learn.

Recognised as one of the boldest environmentally-led regeneration initiatives in the country, it is transforming a post-industrial landscape. Three decades of forest creation in this ordinary part of the Midlands demonstrates how trees can transform landscapes, communities and the economy. Nearly 10 million trees have been planted in an area that was previously one of the least wooded parts of the country.

Today, the National Forest Company, with the support of partners and communities, are continuing to plant trees, care for woodlands, create and manage habitats, and helping to grow a greener, healthier and more sustainable future together.

The Forest provides a national demonstration of the value of the natural environment to drive regeneration and showcase policy and practice, research and development in the heart of the country.

At a time when it seems everyone is calling for more trees to be planted, the National Forest shows that a positive future is possible. It is a beacon for sustainability – a living example of how people and nature can thrive together.
